WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 13.

President Harrison's triumph over the very noisy and determined opposition to him shows once more that it is not the fellow with the most brass bands who always succeeds. Enthusiasm is always a good thing to have in politics, if it is genuine, but even then it cannot win in a convention or before the people unless it is backed by a majority of the votes to be cast. As to the wisdom of the Republican Convention in renominating President Harrison there is a wide and honest difference of opinion in Washington, which is confined to no single political party.

There is no semblance of enthusiasm here over the renomination of President Harrison, nor is there any of the bitter talk against him which has invariably followed every Republican Presidential nomination since 1872. The nomination is received as a matter of course by the Republicans, who predict the election of the ticket; it greatly pleases the Democrats, at least that is what they all say, and they profess confidence in their ability to name a ticket at Chicago that will defeat him; and the People's Party men say they like it, and that if the Democrats will now put up Mr. Cleveland they are certain that they can carry a large number of States on a free-coinage platform, as against both Harrison and Cleveland, who are both on record as opponents of free coinage.

The nomination of Whitelaw Reid for Vice-President was unquestionably a great surprise here; his name had been mentioned, but no one appeared to think of it in any other way than as complimentary. Mr. Reid is well known here and is personally an able and estimable gentleman, and well liked; but he has one of those very troublesome things in politics—a record. He was one of the ablest and bitterest of the enemies of Republican editors who belted Grant and supported Greeley in 1872, and besides, in his long fight with the New York Typographical Union he made his paper known as an opponent of organized labor. True, these things are all of the past; but that they will be again raked up is certain. That is why his nomination was surprising here.

The sudden death of Col. L. L. Polk, President of the National Farmers' Alliance, is a severe and unexpected blow to the third-party movement, as his influence with the Alliance in the Southern States was relied upon to bring the bulk of that organization into the new People's Party, and it was regarded as almost a certainty that he would have had a place upon the national ticket of that party, to be nominated at Omaha July 4, had he lived.

Who will the Democrats nominate? has now become the question of the hour. The Democratic National Convention will meet at Chicago next week, and from the best information obtainable here Mr. Cleveland will occupy almost the identical position before that body that President Harrison did at Minneapolis. He will start in with more instructed delegates for him than for any other candidate, and he will have to stand the assaults of the field, which promise to be quite as bitter as those made upon Mr. Harrison, and in order to obtain the nomination he will have to get two-thirds of the Convention. Whether he will be as fortunate as his old opponent is a question, although there is no denying that from a Washington point of view he appears to have the best of it. The tactics of the opposition, as far as they can be learned, will be to spring as many "favorite sons" as possible on the Convention in the first ballot, in order to weaken Cleveland.

Senator Hill will, if the Cleveland men know what they are talking about, develop his full strength on the first ballot; indeed, some of them are predicting that his name will not be presented at all, and that Mr. Cleveland will be nominated by acclamation; but the result of interested predictions of the work of the Minneapolis Convention was not of such a nature as to increase public credulity in such statements. As Josh Billings once said, "Politics is mighty uncertain business."

Senator Quay has never been known as a very ardent friend of reform in the civil service, but his experience at Minneapolis has, it is said, convinced him of the necessity of a law to keep Federal officials from participating in nominating conventions, and it is hinted that he proposes introducing an amendment to the civil-service law that will accomplish that purpose. If he does, an amendment will be offered to his amendment, to prevent Senators and Representatives in Congress being delegates to nominating conventions. Both amendments would probably prove popular with the people, who might then try their own hands at running the nominating conventions for a while.

Want Their Mail Delivered.

An article that appeared in the Evening News on Thursday night stating that a movement was on foot to have a part of Watessing annexed to East Orange created great excitement among the Watessing politicians, none of whom were aware that any such thing was contemplated. A hasty consultation was held at Watessing Centre by the men who run things, and it was decided that the movement must be nipped in the bud. An obstacle was met with at the start, and that was to discover the originator of the movement. Members of Active Hose Company were suspected of being at the bottom of it, as it is well known that they have shown signs of discontentment with the Bloomfield government ever since the Fire Committee refused to establish a "dangerous precedent" and purchase their hose carriage and the recent collapse of the new carriage furnished the company, was thought to have caused the old sore to break out afresh. Some members of Active Hose have another and more serious grievance against the Bloomfield government, in that it allows members of the Fire Department to ride to fires on bicycles. Inquiry was made and it was clearly proved that none of the members of the hose company were concerned in the secession conspiracy. It was next alleged that the residents of Myrtle Avenue were urging the scheme on account of the failure of the Town Committee to include Myrtle Avenue among the streets to be macadamized this year. Myrtle Avenue people denied all knowledge of the scheme, and suggested that probably some Glen Ridge had recently moved into Watessing.

The Watessing Wheelmen's Association were next suspected of being the authors of the plot as they had recently given utterance to remarks about Watessing becoming too Puritanical, and more liberty would be enjoyed if it was attached to the First Ward of East Orange, which is represented by Joseph Ellor, who owns a bicycle. The wheelmen denied all knowledge of the plot.

The inquiry was diligently pursued and Adriance V. Walling of Thornton Street was discovered to be the man who was leading the movement, and the cause of his wanting to go over to East Orange and taking Watessing with him was due to the refusal of the letter carrier to give him the benefit of the free postal delivery, to which he and others on Thornton Street are justly entitled.

The Watessing leaders will wait on the Postmaster and convince him of the justice of the claim of the Thornton Street people, but if they hear any more secession talk from Mr. Walling they will tell him he can go to East Orange, but that he must leave Watessing intact when he goes.

To the Graduates of '92.

ANNA I. MACKENNA.

O'er learning's furrowed field you've trod
For many years gone by,
And from its fertile upturned sod
Gleaned gems of value high.

You've labored long and earnestly
To win the olive bough;
And with your efforts came success,
Yours is the olive now.

Soon you will leave the school room
To seek a wider field
For your graduation.

The old school-life is sealed.
Then you will prove the value
Of those gems from learning's field,
And then to all your efforts
May success ever yield.

That Tired Feeling

You cannot always tell what may be the cause. Possibly it may be due to change of season, climate, or life; possibly to overwork or overstudy, to mental suffering, nervousness, or various bodily ailments. But there is no mistaking the effects. You know you feel "almost tired to death," without strength to do anything; ambition seems to be all gone, and in its place indifference to how the world goes—an indescribable languor and weakness. You have no appetite, do not care about food, and only eat because it is the hour for eating, or from force of habit.

This must be stopped. Your condition must be changed at once, or like a ship drifting with the inward tide, you will soon be dashed upon the rocks of incurable disease and death. Rouse the torpid kidneys and liver, tone the digestive organs, create a new appetite, purify and vitalize the impure and sluggish blood, cure the headache and overcome all the prostrating effects of that Tired Feeling by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is just what you need, and to delay taking it is unwise.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by druggists at six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

FEEL LIKE MYSELF ONCE MORE.

Mrs. Jacob First, whose husband works in the foundry, living at 561 Chambers Street, Philadelphia, New Jersey, says:

"I have used 5 or 6 bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and like it very much. For a year or two I was badly run down. Had little appetite, poor digestion, dizziness in the head and torpidity of the bowels. The more laxatives I took the worse I got. I was at bed at one time that my life was despaired of."

My trouble having taken the form of nervous prostration and general weakness. Since I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I have greatly improved, and feel like myself once more. I never had anything do me so much good." Mrs. Jacob First, 561 Chambers Street, Philadelphia, N. J.—Advt.
